CAMPBELL HOLDS THE STANDS YET.

A Writ of Prohibition Threatened to Prevent the Comptroller from Ousting Him. Comptroller Myers has decided to revoke the permit by which Thomas Campbell holds the stands at the corner of West street and Loew avenue in the New West Washington Market. Campbell is a brother of Congressman Tim-othy Justinian Campbell. He used the stands for a saloon and restaurant.
Ever since April last Comptroller Myers has been considering an application for the trans-fer of Campbell's stands to Charles E. Meier, who presented a bill of sale executed by Camp-bell, the consideration for which was alleged be $11,000. It seemed that the bill of sale to be $11,000. It seemed that the bill of sale had been put up as collateral on certain notes of Campbell's held by Meier, and the Comptroller refused in May last to act because the notes were not due. Campbell appeared and protested that the notes had been given without consideration, and told a story of how he had been lured by Meier into a scheme for establishing race tracks, and had given notes for stock of the company which was to build the race tracks, with the understanding that he was to have the restaurant and bar privileges at all the tracks. Meier started one track—the lyy City at Washington—and his scheme fell through.

Campbell dared Meier to bring action in the and bar privileges at all the tracks. Meier started one track—the Ivy City at Washington—and his scheme fell through.

Campbell dared Meier to bring action in the court to recover on the notes. He was represented by his brother, the Congressman, and Civil Justice Goldfogie on the hearings before the Comptroller, and by their advice he requested to pay the Meier notes when they fell due on Aug. 11. Thereupon the application of Meier for the transfer of Campbell's restaurant privilege was renewed, and several additional hearings had before the Comptroller. Meier now produced a new lien, namely, a note for $5,000 given by Campbell to William M. Fless, and a chattel mortgage on the stands put up as collateral with the note. The note had been assigned to Meier. The Comptroller waited until this note became due, and, at Campbell's solicitation, he says, granted a delay until Dec. 1 for Campbell to meet it. It has not been met. In deciding yesterday to exercise his discretion to takekhelstands away from Campbell, the Comptrollerisays that he is not bound legally to recognize such chattel mortgages, but that it is desirable that the standholders be held to a standard of average honesty and plain dealing in their business relations, and that it is not advisable to allow a marketman who is hopelessly insolvent to continue to occupy public stands. The Comptroller, on these facts, announces the revocation of Campbell's permit, to take effect on Dec. 20, if payment in full of principal and interest of the Fleisa note is not made by that time. The other claims he pays no heed to. "That permit will never be revoked by Comptroller Myers." said Justice Goldforle's law partner. Charles Cohn, yesterday. "A writ of prohibition will be issued preventing him from acting, on the ground that such action would be an abuse of his discretionary powers. There is a proper tribunal for Mr. Meier to enforce his alleged claim. The Comptroller isn't that tribunal."

A friend of Congressman Campbell and his brother said yesterday:

Early resterday morning Foliceman Hughes was standing at the corner of Thirty-second street and First avenue when he heard cries of Fire! He saw smoke escaping through the crovices in the watchman's shanty, and attempted to onen the deart, but it was locked on the inside. Then he rave a jerk on the know and the cutire shanty fell. One of the beams from the roof hit the policeman and he fell down. Picking himself up, he gazed at the amoking dôbris, when he was horrified to discover the besty of a woman tring in the rules. Shewas unconscious, and her ciothing was on fire.

Some men from a near-by machine shop houred water on the unconscious woman. An amistiance was summoned and she was taken to Helleyue Hospital. When she recovered consciousness, which she did in about an hour, she said that she lived at 400 First avenue. Her hisband's name was flattin, she said, but later she said it was larry. Turned Upside Bown by a Mail Van. A one-horse truck, loaded with butter, eggs. and lard, passed through Chambers street at about 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The driver was on his way to the Erie Ferry. Just driver was on his way to the Erie Ferry. Just as he was crossing Broadway mail wagon 128 came dashing up the street. The driver of the truck tried to get out of the way, but the pole of the mail wagon hit his wheel and turned the horse and truck clean over. The driver of the mail wagon didn't wait to see what damage he had done, but shouting "You can't stop the United States mails." he whipped up his horses and disappeared up Broadway. The truck driver and his horse escaped without sorious injury, but his load was strewn all over Broadway and the truck was hadly wrecked. The mishap delayed the cable cars for several minutes until the wreck was cleared away.

Testing the Brown Segmental Wire Gon. The firing of the first hundred rounds of the Government test of the Brown segmental tube wire gun at Sandy Hook was satistube wire gun at sandy Hock was estis-factorily completed restords. The gun was constructed to withstand very much higher pressures than the ordinary built-up gun. The test prescribed required that sixty rounds of the first hundred should be of 50,000 pounds pressure per square inch, and the re-maining forty of 40,000 pounds pressure per square inch. The regular service pressure of a built-up gun is only 37,000 pounds per square inch. A suitable powder has been ob-tained, and the firing at Sandy Hock will now be continued with more regularity.

ANOTHER HIGHWAYMAN BEGGAR.

Charles Soebel Knocked Senseless Because He Refused to Give Money. Charles Scebel, who is employed as a salesman down town, and who lives at 47 East Fif-tieth street, was found at the Bowery and Stantieth street, was found at the Bowery and Stanton street early yesterday morning by Policeman Harris wandering around in a dazed condition. His head was cut, and blood was flowing profusely from the wound. To the policeman bosbel said that he had heen accosice by a man who asked him for money.

"I told him I only had a few dollars, and that I needed that." said Soebel. He then insisted on my giving him something. You'll be serry if you don't, he said. I again refused and he raised his hand and hit me on the head. I fell senseless."

Hoosbel's wound was a bad one, and the surgeon had to take six stitches in it. The police are looking for the beggar. They think he must have had asharp stone in his hand. Seebel thinks he would know the man if he saw him again.
